CHARLIE'S STORY

Just wanted to write a quick note to all of you who share your homes and hearts with animals of all kinds. Several months ago my husband was diagnosed with a fast moving cancer, he underwent chemo radiation and lost his leg due to the cancer. We spent many hours at the hospital and daily chemo and radiation. We had a wonderful english setter named "Charlie" who we just didn't think it was fair that he had to be in his kennel all day and no one to play with, but he was much loved. We called on "Maggie" at the Carver County Humane Society to find Charlie a wonderful new home where he could get all the care and running and hunting and the best dog life possible. Well several months had passed, and recently my husband passed away also. I am of course heartbroken, but one day I went online to just see if Charlie might still be available, to my great surprise he was. He had been adopted twice... and brought back twice (this was fate intervening) I called Maggie and explained about my husband and if I could please adopt Charlie back. We made arrangements, and last week I picked him up and brought him home. He knew he was home, he ran up the stairs grabbed the blanket from under the cat (just like he always did and he hasn't left my side. I can't express in words how much joy it has brought me to have Charlie home, it's like having a little bit of my husband with me. Thank you all for the work you do, and blessings you bring into peoples lives. Thank you.

— Carrie and Charlie

How to find a lost dog

Looking for Your Dog

1 Don't waste time! Get a couple of people to work in an organized way simultaneously. In the first two hours, ask family and friends to search around town and up to a two-mile radius of the location where the dog was last seen. Create business-card sized flyers to hand out so that your information is readily available and easy to share. Use free services such as PetMetric.com or Oliver Alert on Facebook to help get a virtual search started immediately in your geographical area as well.

2 Bring along your dog's favorite toy, or another noise that makes him come running. Dogs can hear sounds from very far away and may come if they hear a comforting sound! Shaking a treat bag or something else a dog knows means food can help, too.

3 While you're out searching, have someone else make phone calls to your local Humane Society, animal shelters, rescues, vets, and police departments. Contact your neighbors to be on the lookout. If you're close to a county line, contact similar places in that county, too. If your local TV and radio stations make community announcements, ask them for help. Notify the local pounds and shelters. If someone does find a dog and brings it there, they will know to reach you. If they do say they have a dog that matches, make sure to visit yourself, and don't call off the search until you're sure it's yours. Their description and yours can easily vary.

4 Create an ad with a recent picture of your dog. If you don't have a photo, and your dog is a purebred, use a picture from a book. Describe the dog so an average person would recognize him if he saw him. Include identifying information about him like his collar, dog tags, tattoo, identifying features like scars or unusual colorations, or microchip ID number.

- Be specific: "LOST: (Dog's Name) a brown dog with white face and paws, SPAYED female; 60#, got loose from yard on Dec. 1, 2005 (Location where lost) near the post office in Our Town, PA around 4 p.m. Wearing a pink collar with rabies tag and license. Is on anti-seizure medication. Family pet. REWARD. Call (610) 555-0000."
- "Family pet" tends to motivate people to look. Advertising it as a "show dog," "breeding dog," "therapy dog," or "search and rescue dog" is not a good idea. Too much disclosure is not always the best policy in these matters.
- A reward tends to motivate people. However, don't state an amount. If you make the reward too large, like $5000, people will wonder about the dog's value and some people may not want to return your pet.
- Always say a female is spayed, whether she is or not. Again, this is to protect the dog from the unscrupulous who might see a breeding opportunity. The same logic applies to a medical problem or genetic defect. People will be less likely to think of breeding a dog that could be perceived as valuable if they think it has a medical problem. That gives an urgency to the ad, too.
- If the dog is friendly, say "Please try and coax her into your garage or fenced yard and call us." If the dog is not friendly or could be a fear biter say, "Don't attempt to corner her. Simply call us with her location ASAP."
- It is a good idea to make a few copies of flyers in different languages, like Spanish or French, especially if you live in an area with people of many different backgrounds.

5 Immediately contact all pet services and shelters in your area and ask if they have had any calls about dogs that match your description. Visit the shelter if possible to see if anyone has brought your dog in.

6 Intensify the search after your dog has been missing for 24 hours. Make at least 200 photocopies of your ad. (Printer ink runs in rain; photocopier toner won't.) Start posting on bulletin boards and in high visibility areas like gas stations and grocery stores in your neighborhood. Tape flyers to phone poles (in many places, it is illegal and unsafe to use staples because it's a danger to pole men). Ask friends and family members to distribute flyers door-to-door. Be sure to put extra fliers around that playground, or notify the owners of that dog park.

7 Take "found" calls with a grain of salt. At this devastating time, you are vulnerable and there are unethical people who may try to take advantage.

- If someone calls and describes your dog from your ad and says, "I've got your dog here," respond, "Does she have a black mark inside her right leg?" and they say, "She sure does" and your dog doesn't, hang up quickly. You don't want to deal with such people. If they say, "No, she doesn't" and you think it could be your dog, simply say you made a mistake, that's another dog you've seen before.
- If someone tries to blackmail you into a higher reward before returning your dog, try to make sure they have the right dog (or any dog at all) and ask the person to meet you in a public place. Then go with another person to meet them. Don't be taken advantage of. If it is your dog, offer a token reward.
- Recent scams include people calling for out-of-state airfare for your lost dog. They might say your dog has been stolen and dumped far from home and they found him 200 miles away. Don't fall for it.

8 After 2 days: Extend your search.

Go a little farther by vehicle and start spreading the word to your local mailmen, UPS and Fed Ex drivers, joggers, runners, bikers and anyone else walking around the search areas. Drop off or fax a copy of your ad to area shelters. Expand the radius of your search area by several miles - call shelters even beyond the area you think your dog could have reached. Visit the animal shelters and rescue leagues to look for your pet every other day. Don't expect volunteers to recognize one brown dog from another. If the dog is a dirty, matted mess that lost weight, you may have trouble identifying your own pet. Ask if there is a quarantine area or an area where injured animals are kept in case your dog is separated from those shown to the public. Check the "found" ads in they newspaper each day your pet is lost.

Prevention

Get your dog microchipped.

Make sure that your yard is secure. Fill in any holes in the fence and make sure that your gate latches securely.

Don't let your dogs out of the house unattended.

Stay positive.

Dogs have been re-united with their owners even after a year or more. Keep going back to the shelters showing pictures of your dog. Who knows, maybe it will find you!

Family reunited with lost dog after three months

— By Tammy Sakry on October 19, 2012, Anoka County Shopper

The following story appeared in the Anoka County Union and Shopper. It shows how a family never gave up on finding their lost dog.

For three months, Tom and Lisa Zamberletti were looking for a missing member of their household. During rush hour, they could be spotted on heavily traveled corners in Ramsey with signs asking for help finding Rick, their missing six-year-old rat terrier. Rick ran away during a trip to Coborn's grocery store June 29.

They took the convertible, with the top down, to the store for some gas and meat around 7:45 a.m., said Tom. With Rick's leash tied to the steering wheel, Tom went into the store. "I was in there for about five minutes and when I came out, Rick was gone," he said. An elderly couple were waiting for Tom. They had approached the car to see Rick, but Rick, who is shy and gets easily scared by strangers, backed out of his collar and ran off, Tom said. When the couple tried to catch Rick, he headed to Highway 10 and the traffic, he said.

Over the next three months, Lisa and Tom caught glimpses of Rick. But Rick did not seem to recognize them. Sometimes when dogs get spooked, they forget their humans and sibling dogs, he said. For the first few days, there was no signs of Rick. Being a holiday weekend, they did not know if someone picked him up and took him up north with them, Tom said. That weekend, Lisa and Tom created signs and put them up on Highway 10 hoping to get help from returning drivers. "It was hard because the signs were being taken down, probably by the Anoka County Highway Department," Tom said. The Zamberlettis also posted signs near areas of reported sightings of Rick, some as far north as St. Francis. They did mailbox flyers, advertised on Craig's List, put it on Tom's Facebook page and stood on the corners holding signs. The key thing was to let as many people know as possible, said Tom, who is a self-employed handyman. They received several phone calls about Rick, some just seeking updates on whether the dog had been found. Several of the calls got Tom closer to Rick, but the quick-witted and fleet-footed dog made his escape each time. Although Tom would call to Rick, "Rick would run because someone was chasing him. He didn't know who, just that someone was chasing him and that was bad," Lisa said. "I was always a couple of steps behind him," Tom said. Around July 20, Rick dropped out of sight.

To raise awareness of Rick's plight, the Zamberlettis set up a "Lost Dog" booth during the Sept. 8 Ramsey Happy Days event and continued to post signs. "I didn't want us to give up if (Rick) had not given up," Lisa said. "I knew Rick and his temperament," Tom said. "He is a survivor. He is tough." They also consulted with three psychics, who all told them Rick was alive and nearby. The couple created a prayer shrine with Rick's photo and a message asking for him to be brought home. It all gave them hope to keep going, Lisa said.

COMING HOME

Oct. 3, Tom received a call from a resident on 149th Avenue and Ramsey Boulevard that Rick was in her yard. Tom rushed over with a live trap. When he pulled into her yard, Tom could see Rick. "He did not look good. He didn't look like he had much left," Tom said. At first, Tom considered leaving after placing the live trap baited with food. But he changed his mind after seeing Rick's condition. He let Fritz, Rick's brother dog, and Sweetpea, the neighbor's dog, out of his truck in an attempt to catch Rick, but they went the other way. Tom decided to take the chance and approach Rick, who was lying down and had a broken front leg. "As soon as he saw me coming, Rick ran into the strawgrass," Tom said. Tom took off running into the ditch separating him from Rick, tripped, rolled and grabbed Rick by the body. Rick growled and started snapping, Tom said. Tom had to call out Rick's name a couple of times before the dog realized who had a hold of him. The tension left Rick's body and he gave Tom a look of "where have you been," he said as Rick looked at him with doe eyes from the comfort of his dog bed.

During his second update call to Lisa, who works for Metropolitan Heart and Vascular Institute, Coon Rapids, Tom said he had Rick and was taking him to their veterinarian in New Brighton. In a later update to Lisa, Tom sent her a photo of Rick. He was really skinny. He had dropped from his already lean 25 pounds to 16 pounds, she said. Lisa's supervisor arranged for someone to replace her so she could go to the veterinarian's office.

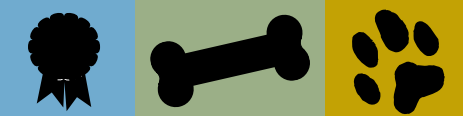

While Rick was able to return home that day, he had to have surgery Oct. 12 to repair his leg.

THANKFUL

They met a lot of people over the last three months and they are thankful for all the help they received and for those who prayed for them, Lisa said. They are also thankful for the people who were willing to allow them to set up live traps in their yards and for those who put out food for Rick, she said.

After searching for their rat terrier Rick for three months, Tom and Lisa Zamberletti were reunited with their dog Oct. 3.
